BMS to host social media awareness program for parents, guardians

Burns Middle School will host a special program titled “What Every Parent Should Know About Social Media” from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 25.

The program is open to parents, guardians, grandparents and other caregivers of BMS students and will include a free meal as well as a presentation on an important topic relating to the safety of children and youth.

Trooper Corey King, an 18-year veteran of the Kentucky State Police and current public affairs officer, will share information about the following topics:

- Identifying popular social media sites
- Identifying current texting codes with meanings
- General Internet safety awareness
- Local criminal cases involving minors

Our media partners are invited to attend this program and share information presented by Trooper King with your readers, viewers and listeners. For more information, contact BMS guidance counselor Chantay Taylor at chantay.taylor@daviess.kyschools.us or 270-852-7400 or KSP Trooper Corey King at corey.king@ky.gov or 270-826-3312.
