

Five House Rules - Might Stop Fights at Your Home

If you have ever heard “She’s touching me” or “He is in my room” then read on and these five rules could help your home.

Kids need boundaries and clear rules that parents enforce consistently each day. Below are a few rules that might help your atmosphere at your house.

No Yelling – as a parent modeling this is the best teaching technique for our kids

No taking without asking – as a parent remember if permission was not asked for and granted then you know who broke the rule

No hurtful feelings- when discussing this rule include name calling or hitting which is not allowed and there will be a consequence

No involvement without evidence – when there is a problem if you were not a witness then stay out of it and this teaches the kids to solve their own problems

No tattling- parents must remind kids to only tell when someone is hurt, scared, or in danger otherwise it is tattling

No matter how hard we try as parents, kids are going to fight and have conflict with each other. So as a parent try to keep battles from escalating and teach kids how to resolve them. Good Luck!!

Cindy Heady
EVES Counselor

852-7350

“Where Kids Shine”